

THEATERS AND THESPIANS

Living in the same kind of thatched huts that serve as dwellings in their far-off mid-Pacific home, garbed in the same meager habiliments which characterize their daily existence on their native beach, and participating nightly in the weird, uncanny dances and incantations which are a part of their tribal ritual, 300 South Sea Islanders are encamped on the 1200-acre ranch of the Universal Film Mfg. Company near Los Angeles, California.

The band of brown-skinned semi-savages will be turned over to the Huanani group of the Society Islands (which are under French domination). The first picture in which the Islanders will be used is "Lucille Love, the Girl of Mystery."

One of the settings of the "Lucille" series of pictures is in the South Sea Islands. It was imperative that genuine natives appear in the picture. As a result a cablegram was sent to Henry MacRae, director and manager of the company of Universal players now on a trip around the world, ordering him to proceed from Honolulu to the South Sea Islands and there secure 300 natives.

Pacific Exposition at the end of eight months and will be a feature of the world's fair to be held in San Francisco in 1915. In the meantime the film company, which will utilize the Islanders for moving picture purposes, is under $25,000 bonds to insure their safe return to the Islands from which they were brought to the United States. In order that the untutored band of natives may be turned over to the expedition official intact, armed guard is being maintained over them.

The importing of the Islanders is in keeping with the policy of realism now in vogue in motion picture production. They were brought to the United States on a specially chartered ship from the Island of Totopoto, in the Marquesas Sea.

THRILLING TRAGEDY OF WHISPERING GULCH

Nothing in the way of Western drama produced and released by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company in months has so stirred the enthusiasm of the trade-press and the National Board of Censorship as "The Tragedy of Whispering Creek." In two reels, it was shown recently to a

Briefly, the story is as follows: In a small mining community lives an orphan girl who is engaged to a miner. A degenerate Mexican infests the camp and proves a menace to the citizens. The orphan's sweetheart finds him intimidating two young sweethearts and gives him a well-deserved beating. This incurs the Mexican's hatred. A young stranger, coming into camp, accidentally shoots himself while cleaning his revolver. The orphan girl takes him into her cabin and dresses his wound. She is called out by the Mexican and attacked, but is saved by the strange miner. To secure revenge, the Mexican informs the miners of the place that the orphan is harboring a man in her cabin. This reaches the ears of the orphan's sweetheart. With a strong fist the young miner smashes the living mouth.

ENGLISH ACTOR CYRIL MAUDE IS MAKING GOOD

Theatrical Manager Was Prepared to Lose Money But Found a Mint.

SETS RECORDED FOR ACTOES INVADING UNITED STATES

Appearance in "Grumpy" Is a Distinct Individual Achievement Says Frohman.

By Beau Risoalto.

New York, May 8.—For the first time in many, many moons an English actor has invaded the United States and been successful the first season.

Prepared to lose $30,000 introducing Cyril Maude, George Tyler today is far and away ahead of the game, and the theatrical game during the past season and during the season behind the past one, or that matter, has not been productive of many successes. When Cyril Maude, who gave such happiness to so many, in his wonderful production of "Grumpy," said goodbye to the audiences which packed Wallack's, some months ago, he was some $75,000 better off than when he reached these shores six months before.

Maude's success was a most satisfying one. He very nearly set a record for any invading English actor. As George Tyler and Charles Barnham, of Wallack's theater, look back over the books they find this rather astonishing record. "Grumpy" was played to a $10,000 house the first week. During one week of the six months it played to a $15,000 house. It never fell below $11,000 for any one week after the first. Maude's salary is understood to have been $1,000 a week. Added to this he received 10 per cent of the first $10,000 receipts and slightly more than half of all the receipts over that amount. This brought his salary up to approximately $75,000 for the 25 weeks, or $3,000 a week.

But Cyril Maude's success was more than merely a financial one. It was a distinct individual achievement, and few there are who saw "Grumpy" who begrudge him a penny. The play, "Grumpy," by the way, was two years on the market before it was produced. Charles Frohman had a chance at it but when he asked J. E. Dodson to play it, Dodson refused on the ground that he did not believe his health would stand up under the strain.

The summer openings have come to stay. As proof, witness the extensive preparations that are being made by Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger to start their first musical piece of the season along in sultry August. The piece is now in the making. It will be an adaptation of a French farce, as was "Oh! Oh! Delphine," and "The Little Cafe." Grenet Dancourt and Maurice Vaucaire wrote the original which is called "La Fils Surmaturel." Harry B. Smith is writing the book and lyrics and Ivan Caryll is composing the music.

On Monday evening the Frohmans will be able to tell whether they can hereafter be successful in rehearsing two different plays in two different parts of the country, without stopping the performances of either one, with the idea of merging the two into a third production within four weeks.

Ethel Barrymore and John Drew open Monday night in Sardou's "A Scrap of Paper." With Mr. Drew in Chicago and Miss Barrymore in Washington two weeks ago, he playing "The Tyranny of Tears," and Miss Barrymore in "Tante," theatrical followers here said it wasn't possible.

The Frohmans sent those members of the company who will appear in the principal scenes with Miss Barrymore to Washington as members of the "Tante" company, where they respectfully rehearsed their parts.

The Drew-Barrymore forces met last Sunday in Pittsburgh, and there held the first full rehearsal of "A Scrap of Paper" under the direction of William Seymour, at the Nixon theater. The rehearsal took all day and continued until midnight, when Drew and his company returned to Chicago, and Barrymore and her company went back to the south, where she will complete her "Tante" season at Richmond, Roanoke, Lynchburg and Norfolk, Va.

"The Scrap of Paper" will be watched with deep interest, for one season at least. It will be the first time Ethel Barrymore and John Drew will have appeared as co-stars, when they open Monday at the Garrick. Miss Barrymore is John Drew's niece.

We'll soon be able to learn what's in a name. Gilbert Mansfield, 16, son of the late Richard Mansfield, has decided to follow his father on the boards. His mother has consented. Young Gilbert, during his father's lifetime, never was permitted to enter a theater. He had his second experience behind the scenes a few nights ago when he called with his mother, whose stage name is Beatrice Cameron, on Miss Margaret Anglin, after her performance of "Taming of the Shrew."

Miss Anglin is an old friend of the Mansfield family. She owed her first opportunity as "Roxane" in "Cyrano de Bergerac" to Richard Mansfield. Clarence Phillips of Jefferson, who was a candidate for county school superintendent two years ago, is in Salem today. He was at the court house transacting business and looking up old friends.

CORVALLIS WOMAN PLEADED WITH "THE TRAFFIC" LESSON

Salem theatre-goers who attend the presentation of the famous problem play, "The Traffic," tonight at the Grand Opera House, will have the privilege of seeing Mrs. Walter Newman in the leading role, but they will not have the pleasure that was given the editorial staff of the Journal—of meeting this charming little woman personally.

Mrs. Newman has none of the "stage" mannerisms or affectations common to members of her profession, but is a sweetly feminine and sincere woman of culture and high ideals, and it was through a deep interest and concern in social uplift work that she "elected" to play in "The Traffic."

Mrs. Newman is the daughter of J. D. Foltz, who many years ago resided in Salem. Her mother, Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, is an ardent suffragist and did much efficient work in getting suffrage universally acknowledged in California.

"The Traffic" was written by Miss Rachael Marshall, who was educated at the Sacred Heart academy of New Orleans. The play is founded on facts gained from actual happenings in the federal courts of New York City, and although it treats a very delicate subject, it is presented in a manner that bears no trace of morbidity or offensiveness.

Everywhere it has been presented it has met with the consistent approval of press, public and pulpit.

Last night the company played to a crowded house at Corvallis, among the audience being Mrs. Crane, preceptor of Waldo Hall, with a party composed of girls from the college. Mrs. Crane highly recommends the play as a factor in social uplift and a powerful lesson for young girls.

FORMER ILLINOIS RESIDENT GLAD TO ESCAPE CYCLONES

W. S. Catton, who lives near Zena, was in the city this morning and was a visitor at the Journal office. He told us of a terrific cyclone that visited that part of Illinois where he formerly lived and showed us a paper containing illustrations of the wreck it left behind it. It was described as being about 150 feet wide, and from indications was as severe as that which wrecked Omaha a year ago. The fact that it swept through a farming district and did not strike any of the towns prevented the damage from being in big figures. As it was, it runs up into the five-figure sum. Mr. Catton looked the picture a moment, and remarking "Oregon suits me," folded the paper and walked away smiling.

WM. P. LORD

CANDIDATE FOR REPUBLICAN NOMINATION FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL.

I announce my candidacy for this office on a definite platform in the interest of the people, and if I am elected to the office, I shall conduct the same in a business like manner. The office will be open at all times to the people and legislators to furnish every assistance in forming legislation for the reduction of taxation, and the abolition of useless commissions.

I will prosecute suits to regain the vast tracts of public lands wrested from the people; I shall enforce and protect the rights of settlers on public and arid lands; I will promptly straighten out rights of the State in canal and locks at Oregon City, so as to insure the speedy completion of this project. These pledges I will faithfully fulfill. (Paid Adv.)

For Congress
W. C. HAWLEY

Candidate for Renomination at the Republican Direct Primary Friday, May 15, 1914.

"From the commencement of his political career, Mr. Hawley has followed the rule that his first duty is to the people he represents. His own motto is: 'No interests to serve but the public interests,' and he has held to that persistently. He is clean, capable, and energetic, and altogether the right kind of man to represent others." (From editorial, Grants Pass Observer, February 18, 1914.) (Paid Adv.)

REPUBLICAN VOTERS SHOULD BEWARE

Party Should Be Represented on National Committee By a Republican

The Republicans of Oregon are entitled to have a Republican named as the National Republican Committeeman from this State. C. W. Ackerson, who claims to be a Republican, is a candidate. He registered as a Progressive January 8, 1914. Then signed petition of H. W. Coe to be Progressive National Committeeman. Then cancelled his registration as a Progressive and registered as a Republican and immediately filed his candidacy for membership on Republican National Committee. Has been an intimate and convenient understudy of the Progressive National Committeeman and seems now to be in combination with him in an attempt to shanghai the Republican organization. His candidacy is being actively backed by parties hostile to the Republican party and having personal interests and private personal grudges to serve. His erratic and excitable temperament has frequently led him to flood the columns of the press with violent attacks upon the Republican party and vicious personal abuse of prominent Republicans and life-long residents of the State.

It is a grave abuse for parties who are not Republican to register as such. It is a graver abuse for outsiders to attempt the capture of a political party to gratify a personal grudge and to promote party discord. It is an abuse against which fair-minded men of all parties will rise in protest. We can never have a reunited party by pushing to the front political hotbeds and men who are political reformers simply for the sake of office. Having been a Republican only twenty-four hours when he announced his candidacy for the highest honorary position in the gift of the party, is some indication of what Mr. Ackerson's motive was in registering as a Republican. As Hon. Ralph E. Williams is the only Republican who is a candidate for Republican National Committeeman, we feel warranted in urging all loyal Republicans in the state to give him their earnest and enthusiastic support.
